During the year which closed on June 30, 1913, the number of passengers carried by New York's electrical operated transit system—subway, surface and elevated—was 1,769,889, 234. This total exceeds by 90,000,000 the total for the previous 12-month period—an increase equivalent to the entire population of the United States. The increase in the subway traffic alone was 25,000,000 for the year, and it is practically equalled by the growth in the number of surface line passengers. The nickels collected during the year by all the New York transit companies totaled $57,718,379.—Electrical World.

A Drop of Printer's Ink

"dropped" in the right spot will rent your room, house, office; will sell your furniture, dog, jewelry, real estate; will get you any kind of help; will bring back your "lost," etc., etc.

The right place to find the drop of ink is on the "want" page of The Star-Bulletin.

One little drop in the form of a "want ad" will make all Honolulu think of your "want."

Tin Mining in Alaska.
Smoothly rounded pebbles of cassiterite, the oxide of tin, are found with gold in the Sullivan creek placers near Rampart, Alaska. The area in which cassiterite occurs is small, being less than a mile in its longest direction. The tinstone, or stream tin, as it is commonly called, varies in amount with the gold, the placers commonly being rich in both minerals. In the richest spots as much as half a pound of tin to the pan is reported, which at the present price of the ore would give the graver a value, not allowing for costs of mining or transportation, of $18 to $20 a yard, according to assay.

Gravels that contain as little as nine pounds of cassiterite to the yard are being mined profitably in the York region, Alaska. There can be little doubt that a great part of the gravels mined on Sullivan creek carry as high a content of tin as this and that some may run much higher. However, on account of the inconvenience that the tin ore occasions in the extraction of gold, the tin is regarded as a nuisance by the miners of the district rather than as a possibly valuable product.—Bulletin, United States Geological Survey.

Montreal is to spend $15,000,000 to improve shipping facilities. Largest grain storage capacity of any city in the world will be provided.
